EXPERIENTIAL LEARNING

“Knowledge can be got in one way, the way of experience; there is no other way to know.”

Swami Vivekananda

The two day workshop at Belagavi organized by Centre Of Excellence, CBSE on Experiential Learning for all Principals to be a part of Prospective Resource Person brought the good time to collaborate and co-create ideas. Although teachers can provide solutions to any problem, it is up to students as inquirers to identify and go deep on the problem to seek multiple solutions. Keeping students in the center of classroom teaching and learning, a conscious strategy is adopted for them to collect data, analyze, and make predictions. Teachers and students then start to reflect on the process, modify plans and draw conclusions of the study and integrate them with the existing ideas. The end result of such a process emerges on to a new pattern of learning.

A Man With Tenacity

-Major Sandeep Unnikrishnan

In what degree can we outline you,
The audacity you have stimulates every pupil.
No word's, No word's describe you...

The lead you took in operation Black Tornado amazed every single Indian.
No word's, No word's describe you...

Your living was ambitious, heroic,
basically an epic.
No word's, No word's describe you...

Your dying breath captured our hearts
Rest easy Major Sandeep.
No word's, No word's describe you...

YISHWA VIDYAPEETH

The birth of the sun

A little girl, scared to sleep,
Scampered out on her tiny feet.
There she saw a wonderful sight,
A colour red, mixed with the dark of night.
Mesmerized, out she sat,
All whilst saying, 'What on Earth is that?'

She waited and waited,
The magic awaiting.
She looked to the sky and saw some paint?
Oh no! it's the sky, changing colours like an artist's canvas.

She waited and waited,
waiting for a sign,
To say, 'The sun's coming!', and end the night.
Then she saw, yellows and pinks and blues,
Creating a look like a dessert cruise.

Like a spell, they change,
Colour to colour, again and again.
Then the sun, piercing through the sky,
Shone on the Earth, oh, so high.

Birds chirping, squawking and whistling,
like a song...
To celebrate the one and only thing,
The Birth of The sun.
